HELLO NOSTALGIA JUNKIES!

Whether you embrace or deny it, we are products of our time destined to remember the past through rose-tinted glasses. The older we get the more we blather on about the good ol' days. The golden past wasn't always peaches and cream, but some decades were simply better than others. I consider myself lucky to have experienced my adolescence in the 1990s. It was an absurd and amazing time for everything. Am I biased having grown up in the 90s? Absolutely.

The "anything goes" attitude of the 80s was taken to an x-treme in the 90s. We saw the birth of the Internet along with the boom of video games and comic books. We experienced laserdisks, neon clothing, super soakers, Tamagotchi's, Furbys, light-up sneakers, infomercial psychic hotlines, and we even saw former presidential candidate Bob Dole endorse Viagra in a TV commercial. Grandpas everywhere rejoiced and showed the world that old age is just a sexy number.

The 90s was a time when everyone owned at least one Adam Sandler CD then listened to it years later with a deep feeling of regret. Not me, though, I had them on cassette! I remember when major news outlets everywhere covered the death of Superman.

We were naive enough to think he was going to stay dead. We also watched primetime comedy TV shows like Dinosaurs featuring anthropomorphic puppet dinosaurs. There was even a buddy cop movie starring Whoopi Goldberg and a puppet Tyrannosaurus called Theodore Rex. Go look it up. It's real amazing. There was also a brief ninja craze people seem to forget about. The Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles is the obvious phenomenon that comes to mind, but something more obscure is the video game The Ninja Warriors where you play as a ninja android with the sole purpose of killing the president. The 90s was rad as hell!

If you are interested in enjoying more 1990s silliness, check out our new comic Jeff Steinberg: Champion of Earth by Joshua Hale Fialkov and Tony Fleecs coming out this August. Jeff Steinberg: Champion of Earth is a sci-fi comedy starring an idiot, an alien invasion, countless 90s pop culture references and toilet humor. I won't spoil anything but if you enjoy ridiculousness and wallow in stupidity, then check it out!
